DOWNS' ELIXIR.
N. H. DOWNS'
Vegetable Balsamic
ELIXIR
For the cure of Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Croup, Asthma, Pleurisy, Hoarseness, Influenza, Spitting Blood, Bronchitis, and all diseases of the Throat, Chest, and Lungs. In all cases where this Elixir is used its efficacy is at once manifested, convincing the most incredulous that is not incurable, if properly attended to. At its commencement it is but a slight irritation of the membrane which covers the Lungs; then an inflammation, when the cough is rather dry, local fever, and the pulse more frequent, the cheeks flushed and chills more common. This Elixir in curing the above complaints operates so as to remove all morbid irritations and inflammation from the lungs to the surface, and finally expel them from the system. It facilitates expectoration.
It heals the ulcerated surfaces and relieves the cough and makes the breathing easy. It supports the strength and at the same time reduces the fever. It is free from strong opiate and astringent articles, which are of so drying a nature as to be in great danger of destroying the patient; whereas this medicine never dries or stops the cough, but, by removing the cause, consequently, when the cough is cured the patient is well. Send address for pamphlet giving full directions, free.
Price 35 cts, 50 cts, and $1.00 per bottle.

RUBBER
BELTING,
Important to all who use Belting.
We have just patented a new article in Rubber Belting which is sold under the name of GIANT BELTING.
This Belting is put with the usual plies of Duck and Rubber, and before putting on the outside cover, it is stitched in seams one inch apart, with cotton cord, which has a pulling strength of fifty pounds. It is then stretched in its plastic state, drawing the plies so close together that with the strong cord with which it is stitched, material strength is added to the belt, and the stitches are so drawn into the plastic rubber, that they cannot wear off on the outside. The outside cover is then put on seamless, so that it cannot open, as is the case of Rubber Belting made in the ordinary way, and the plies being so firmly stitched as well as frictioned together, that the belt cannot separate as many belts made in the ordinary way will, after being used for a time, especially when run at great speed or in damp places.
We particularly call the attention of all mill owners to this belt as being in the end the cheapest belt they can buy, while the first cost is only about ten per cent. more than belting made in the ordinary way. We believe it will wear more than double the length of time. For heavy main belts you will find it superior to anything made. It is also superior for Endless Belts, as we stitch the splice in such a way that it cannot separate.
Try our Giant Belts. We will warrant satisfaction.
Samples and quotations furnished on application.

COLOSSAL
—OF—
DRY GOODS
—AT—
Jordan, Marsh & Co's,
BOSTON.

From the Manufacturer to the Consumer Direct Without any Intermediate Profit.

$2,500,000 of Desirable Merchandise from the Leading Markets of the World

To be Offered Over Our Retail Counters at the Lowest Prices Ever Known.

The new departure of JORDAN, MARSH & Co, in giving up their Wholesale Business and devoting their entire time to the demands of their enormous Retail Establishment, has been inaugurated by a Colossal Sale of Dry Goods, aggregating $2,500,000 in value.

In giving up the wholesale department, the easiest and most profitable way for us would have been to have made a slight mark-down and closed out the stock to our wholesale customers. Instead of doing this we saw the opportunity to show the people of New England that we appreciate their patronage during the last twenty-five years, and decided to remove the wholesale stock to our retail establishment and give the people the whole benefit of cost prices, having cut off the manufacturers, jobbers and retailers' profits.

This is a mark-down of 25 per cent. in all cases, and 50 per cent. in many, from the prices at which these goods are selling to-day.

Bear in mind the fact that these goods are all new and fresh, as they were selected expressly for our spring trade, and they are of such an infinite variety and extent that the wants of all classes of people in all conditions of life can be met, at prices which are not likely to be duplicated in the lifetime of this generation.

The sale was begun on Monday, April 16, and we have such a tremendous crush every day that all of our out-of-town customers who can make their purchases between 8 and 10 A. M. will find it a much more convenient time for making their selections than later in the day. Orders by mail will be promptly filled, when received before the lots are all sold.

STATE NEWS.

Cumberland.

James O'Brien, of Portland, while at work on Brown's wharf Wednesday forenoon, was caught under a pile of falling lumber. His leg was badly broken in two places. He was conveyed to the Maine General Hospital, where the fractures were dressed. The patient is now doing well.

On Saturday last, the Selectmen of Cape Elizabeth, through the town counsel, Messrs. Cleaves and Cleaves of this city, brought suit against Charles P. Jordan, collector of taxes for 1880-81 to recover for an alleged deficiency in accounts amounting to $5,000. The ad damnum in the writ is laid at $10,000. From the statement of the council we learn that this action was taken by the town to protect the selectmen and also Mr. Jordan's bondsmen who are Messrs. Grenville E. Jordan, E. N. Perry, Samuel Doughty, Clement Staples, Milton Dyer and Henry Nutter and therefore the property of Mr. Jordan has been attached to the necessary amount. Mr. Jordan has been a sick man, and therefore the town has waited longer than usual for the accounts to be handed over. The action taken by the town is precautionary.

Col. George Jewett died, Wednesday, at his residence, Portland, after a protracted illness of some months, at the advanced age of 86 years. He was born in Portland in 1795, graduated from Harvard College in 1816, and practiced law for some time in Bowdoinham, where he was a magistrate. About 1839 he was Colonel in the militia. He was a son of the late Joseph Jewett, a former resident of Newburyport, Mass., who came to Portland before the Revolution with his brothers, James Jewett and Rev. Caleb Jewett, D. D. They were great-grand sons of Hon. Nehemiah Jewett, President of the Colonial Assembly of Massachusetts in 1669, whose father Hon. Joseph Jewett, came from Yorkshire, England, about 1632. Col. George Jewett was a brother to the late Hon. James and Hon. Luther Jewett, both collectors of the port of Portland, and of the late Major General Joseph Scott Jewett of Portland, who commanded the 5th division of Governor Fairfield's troops in 1839. He was first cousin to the late Hon. Jedediah Jewett, who was also collector of the port and Mayor of Portland in 1866, and of the late Judge Henry Jewett of Colorado. The deceased was unmarried but leaves as heirs his nephews and nieces: Col. James C. Jewett of New York, Mr. G. H. Jewett, Miss Mary J. Jewett, Mrs. F. Forsyth, Mr. R. P. Jewett and Dr. W. S. Jewett.

In 1878, when the Knights of Pythias, of Portland, leased their present elegant quarters in Pythian Hall, it was necessary to go to considerable expense to fit up the rooms. The Pythian Hall Association was consequently formed and the sum of $3,500 raised for the purpose indicated, by issuing bonds, to run twenty years, which were taken by Munjoy and Bramhall Lodges, then the only two in the city. Since then two other flourishing lodges, Pine Tree and Ivanhoe, have been organized, and to them had been awarded their share of the debt. Three hundred dollars had been paid from the principal, reducing the gross sum to $3,200 giving each lodge $800 to assume. Lately the trustees finding that each lodge had a large surplus, advised the extinguishment of the whole debt and the cancelling of the bonds. This was agreed to, and Wednesday last, the trustees, together with the committees from each lodge, assembled, the money was paid, and the bonds formally cancelled, so that now the Pythian debt is extinguished.

Kennebec.

Capt. Joseph Anthony, a veteran of the Aroostook war, died at his home in Augusta, April 4th; age, 71. He was a hatter by trade, and in 1838 commenced business in his own name in Augusta. The northeastern boundary trouble occurred about that date. When the troops were called out he was commissioned captain and at the head of his company marched all the way to Fort Fairfield, where he remained until peace was declared.

Penobscot.

Mr. Alphonzo Goodwin, of Lowell, has a sheep that dropped at one birth, April 16th, five lambs. They are all smart and doing well.

Somerset.

The Somerset Reporter says: The railroad crossing, Saturday night, was the scene of one of the most disgraceful riots that has taken place in Skowhegan for years. Ten or fifteen roughs indulged in a drunken brawl.

The County Commissioners are in session at the Court house to estimate the land damages on the Skowhegan and Athens Railroad, and will adjourn for the hearing to Tuesday next, at 10 A. M.

Wm. G. Heselton hauled an elm tree a few days ago which was cut on the Howell lot in Madison, that scaled over 3,100 feet.

Mr. R. H. Merrill, one of the oldest merchants at Skowhegan, had a narrow escape from a serious injury, last Friday. He was in the building owned by him and which he is having remodeled for a dental office, and in crossing the room, the floor being all up, he was obliged to walk a beam which gave away, hurling him below a number of feet, and striking his side on timbers beneath. It was thought at first he was hurt internally, but happily it was found that no bones were broken.

LATEST NOTES ABOUT THE FASHIONS.

Ribbons and lace, bows and ends, gimps and fringes still reign paramount for trimmings and make the simplest toilet attractive.

Beads of all kinds, and sequins, are almost as profusely used as ever; pearl, or mother-of-pearl sequins, hanging in latticework of silk cords, or pendant from strands of chenille fringes, are among the most effective ornaments on white or pale-hued evening dresses.

Many of the rich, dark-hued spring woollens in monochrome are sold with borderings. French cashmeres especially are very handsome, with deep bands of the same embroidered in silk in Grecian, Swiss, floral or Renaissance designs, either raised or openwork. These, and other fabrics of the same kind, have sometimes pattern borderings of silk interwoven with the material, giving the effect of lace or embroidery ... demi-season dresses ... are decidedly ... [illegible]

Transparent muslins are shown with strawberries, raspberries, laurel, and arbutus, blossoms, carnations, sweet-brier roses, and moss-buds in groups scattered on a colored ground. Usually this background is of a pale tint, a very delicate tea rose or primrose yellow being a favorite color; but these bright-hued fruits and flowers look very well against backgrounds of dark olive or brown.

Embroidery on silk gauze continues to be used as an elegant trimming to plain and brocaded silk grenadines or gauzes. A charming dress of this kind is composed of narrow ruffles of silk-embroidered gauze of a pale pink hue, the corsage reaching far below the hips, being of pale pink Ottoman silk, trimmed about the square neck and upon the edges of the elbow sleeves with the embroidered gauze. A wide gauze scarf richly embroidered, is draped so as to conceal the joining of the silk corsage to the gauze skirts. A black gauze toilet, embroidered very elaborately in silk, and a further garniture of jet beads, with black silk jersey bodice, also embroidered to match, is made up in a similar manner.

Some of the new patterns in straw lace bonnets are almost as intricate and delicate as Guipure lace designs. These bonnets are light, airy, and very attractive. Their garnitures are correspondingly light and ethereal. Soft-tinted silk mulls and gauzes are used, as well as wreaths of fine flowers mingled with delicate vines. A pretty little French bonnet in the "Olivia" shape, of pale cream-colored straw lace, exhibited this week, is lined with pinkish mauve faille, and trimmed outside with a wreath of heliotrope blossoms and a cluster of crushed roses set at the left side. The last row of lace at the edge of the brim is studded with tiny mock pearl and heliotrope beads, and the scarf strings, of cream-colored lace, are dotted with the same bead work, giving a rich effect to the appearance of the bonnet.

Tufts, aigrettes of ostrich feathers, and tiny birds are favorite trimmings upon elegant evening dresses of silk or satin. At a fashionable evening party in this city recently a dress trimmed with birds was composed of Brussels lace skirt and sapphire blue velvet train, with a flight of blue-birds on the lace skirt and one or two upon the corsage. Another lady wore a mouse gray velvet, with train depending from the shoulders. A yellow and gray bird was placed on the right shoulder, and another on the left hip, with its bill fastened in the folds of the drapery. Most of the trains were made separate from the dress, and fastened to the shoulders either by a diamond clasp, a tuft of feathers or a bird. Some were made in regular Watteau style; for instance, a toilet of canary colored Ottoman silk, ornamented with ravens holding the drapery. In every instance save where the lady was tall and slender, this style of dress was unbecoming.

SCROFULA
and all Scrofulous Diseases, Sores, Erysipelas, Eczema, Blotches, Ringworm, Tumors, Carbuncles, Boils, and Eruptions of the Skin, are the direct result of an impure state of the blood.
To cure these diseases the blood must be purified, and restored to a healthy and natural condition. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has for over forty years been recognized by eminent medical authorities as the most powerful blood purifier in existence. It frees the system from all foul humors, enriches and strengthens the blood, removes all traces of mercurial treatment, and proves itself a complete master of all scrofulous diseases.

A Recent Cure of Scrofulous Sores.
"Some months ago I was troubled with scrofulous sores (ulcers) on my legs. The limbs were badly swollen and inflamed, and the sores discharged large quantities of offensive matter. Every remedy I tried failed, until I used AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, of which I have now taken three bottles, with the result that the sores are healed, and my general health greatly improved. I feel very grateful for the good your medicine has done me. Yours respectfully, MRS. ANN O'BRIAN."
148 Sullivan St., New York, June 24, 1882.

All persons interested are invited to call on Mrs. O'Brian; also upon the Rev. Z. P. Wilds of 78 East 54th Street, New York City, who will take pleasure in testifying to the wonderful efficacy of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, not only in the cure of this lady, but in his own case and many others within his knowledge.

The well-known writer on the Boston Herald, B. W. Ball, of Rochester, N. H., writes, June 7, 1882: "Having suffered severely for some years with Eczema, and having failed to find relief from other remedies, I have made use, during the past three months, of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, which has effected a complete cure. I consider it a magnificent remedy for all blood diseases."

Ayer's Sarsaparilla
stimulates and regulates the action of the digestive and assimilative organs, renews and strengthens the vital forces, and speedily cures Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Rheumatic Gout, Catarrh, General Debility, and all diseases arising from an impoverished or corrupted condition of the blood, and a weakened vitality.
It is incomparably the cheapest blood medicine, on account of its concentrated strength, and great power over disease.

SATURDAY, APRIL 21, 1883.

The Chicago Tribune refers to the Jeffersonian banquet in that city as "the Iroquois inebriation."

The Treasury Department has made preparation for the enforcement of the law passed at the last session to prevent the importation of adulterated, spurious or exhausted teas.

Maine will have its Fast Day to-morrow. And a busy day it will be if all the people obey the admonition of Gov. Robie, to "confess their sins."—Boston Traveller.

In view of the spectacle exhibited by the Chief Magistrate and others at the Massachusetts State House on the day when the above was printed, such sarcasm from Boston does not have very sharp point.

The wonderfully rapid development of Australia is suggested by the announcement that a lady who enjoyed the distinction of being the oldest native, and who was born just after the establishment of the parent colony of New South Wales, died on January 30 in her ninety-fifth year. When she first opened her eyes the total white population of the "island continent" just exceeded 1 000; now it numbers 3,000,000.

The ruler of Uncle Sam's navy seasick! That will read in history like a passage out of "Pinafore."—Boston Herald.

There is as little originality or humor in that gibe as there is of fun in being seasick. It is a well known fact that some of the most skilful shipmasters who ever trod a deck were always troubled more or less with nausea on first leaving port; and one of the most accomplished and valuable officers of the U. S. Navy, the late Admiral Dahlgren, was troubled by sea-sickness during his latest service on board ship.

Some time ago it was announced that the building of the Hudson river tunnel between Jersey City and New York had been abandoned on account of the impossibility of finding the bed-rock at the level which had been adopted for the tunnel. But it is now announced that a rival undertaking has been started by the New York Central Railroad and the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad at a different point, where the river has a better bottom, and where the bed-rock can be easily reached. If this be true, success is probable.

If the newspaper readers are as weary of the interminable yarns about the Star route trials and the Jeannette investigation as the news editors are, remarks the North American, we feel quite assured that they would welcome the final termination of either or both these affairs. As regards the Star route trials, there is a reasonable hope that the end may be reached before the jurors die of old age. But as regards the Jeannette concern, it may possibly be necessary to fit out another expedition to search for the survivors of the home proceedings.

THE QUEEN'S FAVORITE SERVANT. It is stated that when John Brown's body was carried to the grave at Balmoral, the coffin was covered with a tartan plaid belonging to the Queen and sent by her from Windsor expressly for the purpose. What is more, Dr. Profeit, as Her Majesty's representative, laid upon the grave a wreath of artificial violets to which was tied a large mourning card. On this card the Queen had written the following words: "A tribute of loving, grateful and everlasting friendship and affection from his truest, best and most faithful friend, Victoria, R. and I."

A Boston Herald despatch states that "ex-Representative Page, of California, is reported as saying that Ben Butterworth, just before he went to Charleston to take charge of the prosecution of the South Carolina election case, said to him that the Attorney General remarked that the Government didn't have evidence enough to convict the Star Route defendants, and that he considered Brady a badly used man." We cannot credit this report, as the Attorney General a year ago assured the writer of this paragraph that the Government had ample evidence and that the guilt and conviction of the Star Route defendants were morally certain.

A tidal wave of extraordinary character broke over the steamer Aquila on a recent passage from Weymouth across the English Channel. When about an hour out mountainous seas suddenly and with scarcely a hint of their coming smote the vessel, threw her on her beam-ends, swept her decks from stem to stern, flooded the cabins and engine-room, broke the bulwarks in several places, twisted off the iron rail of the bridge, rendered the pump useless, smashed one paddle-box and every sky-light and then immediately subsided, leaving the sea perfectly calm. Not more than five minutes elapsed from the first sign to the last vestige of the tumult.

The statue of the late Prof. Henry, the secretary and director of the Smithsonian Institution, which has been erected on the Smithsonian grounds at Washington, was unveiled Thursday, with appropriate ceremonies, in the presence of a large concourse of spectators, including many distinguished persons. The exercises included music, an address, and unveiling of the statue by Chief Justice Waite, and an oration by President Noah Porter of Yale College. As Chief Justice Waite pulled the ropes to unveil the statue, and the canvas fell to the ground, the band and choristers rendered Hayden's grand chorus, "The heavens are telling," with fine effect. President Porter then delivered his oration on the life and character and the services of the subject of the statue.

Another Southern paper has taken a stand against free trade. The Richmond Dispatch sees the folly of those who are trying to commit the Democratic party to a suicidal policy, and protests against the organization in Virginia allowing itself to be misled on this question. So it jumps in front of the engine and swing its lantern across the track and shouts with all its might, in order to frighten the next Democratic State Convention from starting the party towards a free trade station. It quotes also from other papers in the State to show how strong is the feeling in favor of protection. The position the Dispatch has taken is similar to that of many other Democratic papers in the South. The number of them declaring for protection is growing every day. But notwithstanding this fact, Watterson will doubtless keep right on demanding that they shall all get out of the Democratic household at once.

THE PRESIDENT AT WORK.

Ramsdell in the Philadelphia Press writes: I happen to know something of President Arthur's habits. He is a great night worker, and very careful of details. During the day he receives nearly everybody who comes, and he listens patiently to the story each one has to tell. If it becomes rather dreary and pointless he has a way of stopping it. He receives and lays aside papers and documents that are given him. On Cabinet days (Tuesdays and Fridays) all manner of things come to him. He listens to what the several Secretaries have to say on business of their departments, and he takes the papers and makes notes. His private Secretary and his clerks lay aside everything that needs his attention. When the day is over the President dines, and he gives himself two or three hours' rest and enjoyment. He smokes his cigar and at dinner drinks his glass of wine. When all the really good people are going to bed Mr. Arthur goes to his library and sits down to his big table, covered a foot deep with papers.

With eye-glasses astride his nose and in the light of a big student lamp, he dives into his work. If he sometimes sits at work in his shirtsleeves the ladies need not know it. Hour after hour, in the stillness of the night, does the President work, and when he rises every paper has been disposed of. This matter has been approved, that disapproved or rejected; another has been indorsed and calls for further information; still another is laid aside for future consideration. Sometimes the President works this way till 2 or even 3 o'clock, but when he leaves his table it is clear and clean, ready for the next day's grist. For one, I am very glad the President has gone to Florida for a little rest. Every one who knows Mr. Arthur's habits of work knows that he is tired out. It is very easy to say that he is easy-going simply because he does not insult his callers with busy brusqueness, as though he were hurried half to death. Because he is easy and polite in his manners before the public does not prove that he neglects the work of his great office.

INCREASE IN BREADSTUFF EXPORTS.

The Chief of the Bureau of Statistics reports that the total values of the exports of domestic breadstuffs from the United States during the month of March, 1883, and during the three and nine months ended March 31, 1883, as compared with similar exports during the corresponding months of the preceding year, were as follows: March, 1883, $17,802,275; March, 1882, $12,414,90?; three months ended March 31, 1883, $49,410,862; three months ended March 31, 1882, $35,567 623; nine months ended March 31, 1883, $167 233,418; nine months ended March 31, 1882, $147,711,538. This shows an increase for the past nine months of $19 521,880 over the exports of the corresponding period of the previous year.

It is very possible that the investigation which has been begun into the official conduct of Supervising Architect Hill may fail for want of prosecution of the charges. The two complainants, ex-Representative Murch and ex-Supervising Architect Mullett, have been notified to be present. Mullett has announced that he will not attend, and Murch is reported to have said that he will not, unless the Department of Justice shall furnish him with counsel without expense. It is not known what the decision of the Department of Justice may be upon such an application. It has been necessary for the Government to employ a great many special counsel to conduct the ordinary business of the Department, and it seems scarcely probable that it has any available attorneys who could be spared for this work. The Treasury Department has no fund to hire attorneys for this purpose, and if the prosecutors fail to try to make out their charges the committee will proceed without them.—Wash. Cor. Boston Journal.

It is not unusual that unfavorable comparisons with the postal system of England are made against that of the United States, the superior facilities of delivery there being cited in evidence. English letter-carriers are found in every village and hamlet without respect to the population, while in this country cities having fewer than 20,000 inhabitants are without that convenience. But then England is a very little place, less in size than the State of Missouri, and is very densely peopled. Besides the postman, who sings praises of the Queen, is a poorly paid servant who, in some instances, works seven hours a day for seven shillings a week. The highest amount paid is not more than $6 a week, which, considering differences in values, is equal to perhaps $600 a year here. This compensation is far too small to satisfy the average American worker, and shows the difference in the material of England and the United States, to say nothing of the vast difference in territory.

The accounts which we have published of the shrewd device by which convict Dolan contrived to get himself out of the State Prison into Carney Hospital, and thence speedily upon a train to New York, says the Boston Journal is a painful illustration of misplaced confidence. Dolan was in sufficiently robust health last summer to assume the responsibility of leadership in the mutiny of the convicts, but the discipline to which he was subjected on that occasion was was represented as the cause of a general breaking up of his system. When the Governor assumed his great and successful role of the prisoners' friend, it was natural that Dolan should become an object of special interest to him. He learned with pain of his feeble health and approaching demise, and although it was considered doubtful whether Dolan would be able to sustain the shock of removal, he pardoned him, in order that he might spend his last days under the faithful care of the Sisters at the Carney Hospital. A couple of days therefore rejuvenated convict Dolan that he thought he would feel better for a trip to New York. He went accordingly, and reports himself as having a very good time, but fixes no date for his return. It is ever thus; guileless and unsuspecting natures, like the Governor's are always in danger of being imposed upon.

WORLD'S Hair Restorer
IS PERFECTION!
Public Benefactress. Mrs. S. A. ALLEN has justly earned this title, and thousands are this day rejoicing over a fine head of hair produced by her unequaled preparation for restoring, invigorating, and beautifying the Hair. Her World's Hair Restorer quickly cleanses the scalp, removing Dandruff, and arrests the fall, the hair if gray, is changed to its natural color, giving it the same vitality and luxurious quantity as in youth.
COMPLIMENTARY. "My hair is now restored to its youthful color; I have not a gray hair left. I am satisfied that the preparation is not a dye, but acts on the secretions. My hair ceases to fall, which is certainly an advantage to me, who was in danger of becoming bald." This is the testimony of all who use MRS. S. A. ALLEN'S WORLD'S HAIR RESTORER.
"One Bottle did it." That is the expression of many who have had their gray hair restored to its natural color, and their bald spot covered with hair, after using one bottle of Mrs. S. A. ALLEN'S WORLD'S HAIR RESTORER. It is not a dye.

ARISTOTLE
was the original go-as-you-please pedestrian; he was also a philosopher and school teacher, as all of the high school boys well know; but for the benefit of those that have no time to burn the midnight petroleum in searching thro' the rusty tomes of centuries, we throw this knowledge in, instead of presenting you with a chromo. He was also the originator of a bit of slang that is used up to the present day. He was in the habit of hearing his pupils recite while he ambled thro' his strawberry patch, hence he was called the peripatetic philosopher, and if any were delinquent in their lessons, he was "madder than a hatter" and admonished them to "go take a walk." Some of the girls on these walks, from not having easy boots were soon suffering with corns, etc., (according to Pliny the elder), and the committee turned old A out of school. We should like to have been alive in those days and agents for the DONCOLA BOOTS
for with them corns cannot exist, they are so easy and pliable (they are also stylish). We thus could have kept peace in the family. To the male persuasion we should have sold the
which have no superiors. We have a fresh lot of STIFF HATS for all ages. Also all other goods you need.

NORMAN TURNS INFORMER.

Matters of General Interest.

LONDON, April 19. Norman, Dalton, Wilson, Dr. Gallagher, Bernard Gallagher, Curtin, Ansburgh and Whitehead, the eight men arrested on charges of being concerned in a dynamite conspiracy, were again brought up in the Bow street Police Court this morning. It was noticed as a significant fact that Norman was conveyed to the court room by a detective separately from the other prisoners. Whitehead, who was brought here from Birmingham for trial, protested against handcuffs being placed on his wrists. He declared that the entrance to the court room was the "gates of hell." On the prisoners being arraigned in court it was announced that Norman had turned informer. The rest of the prisoners, including Bernard Gallagher and Whitehead, were formally charged with treason and felony. Mr. Poland, in opening the case for the Crown, said that he had a quantity of fresh evidence against the prisoners, which would be furnished at the proper time. Norman, on being called to the stand, testified that his real name was William Joseph Lynch, and that he was born of Irish parents in the State of New York.

Lynch's Testimony.

Lynch swore that he worked in October last at a coach builder's in Brooklyn. At that time he joined a secret society in New York, the object of which was to free Ireland by force. The members went by numbers. The hall in which he was sworn in was on the corner of Second street and the Bowery. There were other associated clubs. The managers of the clubs were known as district members. They were not known to each other by name. Members were selected to go on missions. He (Lynch) was sent to Dr. Thomas Gallagher, who lived on Manhattan avenue, Green Point, L. I. Gallagher told him he was to go to London. He would know what for when he got there. Gallagher gave him $50 and told him to take steerage passage by the steamer Spain under the name of Norman. Gallagher gave him $100 more and told him to go to London and inquire at the American Exchange for a letter addressed to him.

Lynch did not want to go, as he had relatives to support, but finally went. Gallagher gave him a small box. He examined this on the steamer, and finding it contained a spring, which worked by pressure, he became alarmed and threw it into the sea. Lynch reached London on March 22. He met Gallagher in London the 27th or 28th. They walked past the scene of the Westminster explosion. On his asking Gallagher if "that's what we are going to do?" the latter answered, "Yes." Gallagher viewed the Houses of Parliament and said, "They will make a great crash when they come down." At this point Gallagher shouted out from the dock "You infamous liar." Lynch deposed to further statements of Gallagher as to what destruction was to be wrought. He said he inferred from the talk of his co-conspirators that O'Donovan Rossa was in the scheme. Rossa was referred to as "the old man." Lynch testified that he went to Birmingham to see Whitehead at Gallagher's request for "some material." Gallagher gave him money to buy a presentable trunk in which to put the stuff he was to get from Whitehead. Whitehead put him in the way of getting the India rubber bags.

Lynch confirmed all the evidence submitted at the hearing last Thursday as to Gallagher having called for him as Fletcher. He said when Whitehead was loading the nitro-glycerine into the rubber bags he told Lynch that 50 pounds had been taken away that morning. Whitehead also told him he would soon know what the liquid was. Whitehead here shouted: "You lie, you traitor." Lynch further testified that Gallagher met him when he returned to London from Birmingham with the nitro-glycerine. He had never seen any of the persons before except Gallagher and Whitehead. Lynch fainted while his deposition was being read over and had to be removed from the court room.

The Conspirators Remanded.

LONDON, April 20 The dynamite prisoners were arraigned this morning. A boy employed by Whitehead at Birmingham was placed in the witness box. He recognized Thos. Gallagher (L. R. Gallagher) as the man who visited Whitehead. The boy testified that Gallagher when he visited Whitehead gave the name of Fletcher. When he called to see Whitehead the latter sent him (the boy) on an errand and told him he need not hurry back. When Gallagher made Whitehead a visit, he said he had come for "the oil" that "Fletcher" had ordered. Wilson was conducted by Whitehead to an inner room. The next day Lynch came to Whitehead's place bringing a large box. The boy was unable to swear as to the identity of Wilson, but was positive as to Gallagher, who, he said, called several times. The prisoners were finally remanded till Thursday of next week.

The Phoenix Park Murder.

DUBLIN, April 20, The trial of Timothy Kelly was resumed this morning. After calling a few more witnesses the Crown announced that their case was closed. The case for the defence was opened, their witnesses attempting to prove an alibi for Kelly. The Judge then delivered his charge and the jury at 5:45 P. M. retired to deliberate. The jury after remaining out some little time returned to the court-room and announced a disagreement. Kelly was then remanded and will be tried on Monday next.

An Extradition Law.

LONDON, April 20. Sir John Ross writes to the Times urging that England invite all civilized nations to unite in securing the enactment of laws for the extradition of any person who shall commit atrocities under the veil of a political motive.

The Pall Mall Gazette says the evidence that the dynamite plots now under investigation were hatched in New York is as clear as the proof the foreign police possessed 25 years ago that the Mazzini plots against Italy were hatched in England and says the extradition of Rossa from the United States is about as likely as Mazzini's was from England.

The Argument Commenced in the Star Route Trial.

WASHINGTON, April 20. In the Star Route trial Mr. Ker, counsel for the Government, is making the opening argument. He reviewed Brady's connection with various routes, taking them up in order.

Paper after paper was taken up and attention directed to the marks of fraud in the petitions and affidavits, as shown by the papers and supported by testimony. Brady was denounced as a self-constituted dictator of the treasury, as the man who ruled his department according to his whims, who said that he "was not in an increasing mood" on certain days. The route from St. Charles to Green Horn was next taken up, and the testimony concerning it reviewed with particularity. Before Ker had concluded this branch of his argument the Court adjourned until Monday.

Mr. F. O. Beal, the well-known hotel proprietor, is now making some changes and improvements on his farm, located about two miles from the city. This farm contains some seventy-five acres, and it is Mr. Beal's intention to raise all of his vegetables, and supply his house with milk, [illegible]

[illegible] story will be devoted to a hennery. The lower part will be heated by a large stove with a boiler to cook the food for the pigs, while a large drum on the second floor will keep an even temperature in the hennery.

In his tie-up he has eleven cows, two of which are full blooded Jersey twins. These animals are as neat and clean as can be, William, his head man, taking great pride in keeping them free from dirt. Another fall Mr. Beal will purchase nine or ten more cows, and will put in considerable corn this summer for ensilage. The gardener now has a number of hot beds which are doing nicely and will have as early vegetables as anyone.

This property is a source of pleasure as well as profit to Mr. Beal, who is constantly improving it, and in a few years it will be hard to find a better farm in the State.

FAST DAY.

Its Observance in the City—The Services in the Churches.

Thursday was Fast Day and the day was observed as a public holiday, the stores and places of business being almost invariably closed. In the forenoon well attended services were held in the churches and in the evening several places of amusement were opened to patrons, but did not draw large audiences, showing that the people passed the evening hours generally in the quiet of their own homes.

SERVICES AT HAMMOND STREET CHURCH

In the Hammond street church, after an organ voluntary and a selection by the choir, Prof. Ropes read the 16th chapter of Proverbs and led in prayer. A hymn was sung and the pastor, Rev. H. L. Griffin, announced as his text, 1 Kings 18.43-45. Under the similitude of the small clouds out of the sea, like a man's hand which Elijah saw, the forerunner of a tornado, Mr. G. referred to the clouds in our horizon as a nation and community, though now but small, yet might be a forerunner of danger.

The permanence of a Republic depends upon the character of the people in it. Our future is not assured by the past and it is only by cherishing true, substantial character that we shall continue to be great and free. Our wide continent with its vast extent and great resources may have a tendency to lead us to consider money and luxury and ease the ambition of life. The speaker presented startling figures to show the illiteracy of the people and said that intelligence was needed to maintain the Republic. The concentration of our people in large cities was next touched upon. Men move in masses. They divide into layers and sections, and there is a difficulty in providing for the poor, in elevating the people and enforcing laws relating to public virtue and good.

The speaker then passed more specifically to our own city, and showed the need there was of the concentration of effort on the part of our various benevolent associations and churches and of individuals to provide a definite, systematic method of public and private charity; a central organization to whom all cases should be referred. He illustrated this point by reference to the system adopted in London, England, Buffalo, N. Y., and Germantown, Pa. Boston and Portland have each an associated charitable organization. He referred also to the need of a city missionary.

Mr. G. made also an earnest appeal in favor of uniting without distinction of party in efficient effort to promote temperance and purity; awakening the conscience of the people, forming a public sentiment which will be most efficient to secure law and order. Laws will not enforce themselves. Spasmodic efforts only produce reaction. Officers need support and encouragement. Temperance organizations should receive hearty approval and help. Startling facts were stated, calculated to arouse and hold attention of all pure minded men, to deliberate, persistent efforts in this direction.

The service closed with prayer by Mr. Griffin, the singing by the congregation of "God Bless Our Native Land," and the benediction.

AT THE FIRST BAPTIST.

Union services of the Baptist, Methodist and Free Baptist churches were held in the [illegible] church, commencing at 10:30 A. M. The pulpit was occupied by the pastor, Rev. F. T. Hazlewood, Rev. G. B. [illegible], Rev. E. B. Stilson and Rev. Theodore Gerrish, while Rev. R. L. Howard [illegible] in the body of the house. The services were opened by Rev. Mr. Hazlewood, who read the Scriptures and led in prayer. In brief introductory words, in which allusion was made to the day, Mr. Hazlewood introduced Rev. Mr. Stilson, agent of the Bible Society, who addressed the meeting on the promotion of Bible work, stating that the mission of the Society [illegible] represented was entirely unsectarian. He alluded to his stay in the city and narrated incidents which had come under his personal observation while here. In his travels around Bangor he found a much larger number of families than would [be] supposed entirely destitute of the Bible. Rev. Mr. [illegible]ley was the next speaker and very forcibly alluded to the subject presented by his predecessor, making remarks of a somewhat general nature. He urged in eloquent language the advancement of the moral and religious interests of the city and thought it devolved upon the churches and ministers to bring about a right moral sentiment regarding the enforcement of laws. Rev. Mr. Gerrish then addressed the meeting and in fervid speech discoursed upon temperance and the desirability of its promotion in the city. Rev. Mr. Howard was called upon, but on account of the lateness of the hour did not respond. The service closed with the singing of "Coronation" by the congregation.

ST. JOHN'S EPISCOPAL.

Appropriate services were held at St. John's Episcopal church and a good number were in attendance. Rev. W. A. [illegible], D. D., the rector, conducted the services and preached an earnest and interesting sermon. The theme of the discourse was "The tendency of free thought among nations and people to credulity and superstition," and it was treated by the preacher with much power.

HONESTY THE BEST POLICY.

OR HOW THE BACHELOR LOST THE WIDOW.

Mr. Podmore Tempany felt very much disgusted when the fair widow who had consented to share his name handed him a valuable bracelet in order that he might get a missing stone replaced. He was an elderly bachelor of miserly proclivities, and did not half relish the commission, though he could not very well refuse It had been the aim of his life to marry a wife with a fortune, and as Mrs Bramwell Jay possessed this desirable qualification, he was naturally anxious to avoid offending her.

He therefore reluctantly took the bracelet to Mr Bevis, the jeweler in Sackville street, but finding the cost of replacing the missing stone would be considerable, he could not summon up courage to give the order He locked the bracelet up at his lodgings, and fretted a good deal about the unnecessary expense the widow had put him to. By degrees, however, he became calmer, for it happened that Mrs Bramwell Jay omitted to make any inquiry about her property As time slipped by he began to hope that the lady had actually forgotten all about it—which, indeed seemed to be the case Naturally Mr Tempany did not feel called upon to refresh her memory, and thus it came about that the bracelet remained in his possession until the date fixed for the wedding was close at hand

Just at this inconvenient time a friend of Mr Tempany's—to whom he was under obligations in the way of business—must needs get married and Mr Tempany felt compelled to give him a wedding present. He resented this disagreeable necessity very much because he had suffered a great deal of uneasiness of late, owing to the increase in his expenditure incident to his engagement He was also at the moment particularly depressed by the prospect of having to pay for a honeymoon trip to the Italian lakes not to mention such comparatively trifling items as an outfit for himself and promiscuous gratuities to every one on his wedding day Even the consoling reflection that once married, his wife's income would be amply sufficient for both failed to soothe him, and in this unhappy frame of mind he suddenly recollected Mrs Jay's bracelet Since he absolutely must give a wedding present to his friend Bullivant, why should he not make use of the bracelet? It was a great temptation for the ornament had lain in his drawer for several weeks, and Mrs Bramwell Jay had apparently forgotten it If she should happen to ask for it before their marriage, he could invent some plausible excuse to account for the delay in returning it When they were married he could pretend he had lost it, or that it had been stolen, and, if driven into a corner, he could replace it by an inferior article As a matter of fact however, Mr. Tempany did not pause to reflect upon remote contingencies, for he felt so inexpressibly relieved at the prospect of avoiding further expense at the moment, that he yielded blindly to an overpowering temptation As to the morality of the transaction it can only be charitably supposed that he imagined he had some sort of legal property in the bracelet in anticipation of his rights as a husband

However this may be Mr Tempany dispatched the bracelet to his friend's with a neatly worded letter of congratulations and good wishes The fact of one of the stones being missing was a little awkward, because it showed that the bracelet was not new But Mr Tempany flattered him self that he got over the difficulty very adroitly by remarking that the bracelet had been a cherished heirloom in his family for years, and that he would never have parted with it to any one but the wife of his dear and esteemed friend Bullivant By return of post he received a hearty letter thanks from the lady, and also from his friend, and Mr Tempany experienced a thrill of virtuous satisfaction at having for once in his life gained credit for generosity.

Of course he did not mention this little episode to Mrs Bramwell Jay, and he mentally resolved never to introduce Bullivant to her. But a few days afterwards he was considerably startled by the widow saying

"By the-by, Podmore, a friend of mine writes that she has had such a nice letter from you Amy Markham and I were old school fellows You never told me that you knew her

"I never heard the name" said Mr Tempany uneasily

"How stupid of me! That was her maiden name, of course" exclaimed Mrs Bramwell Jay, taking a letter from her desk "It appears she has recently been married Her husband is Mr —Mr —such a queer name and I can't read her signature But he's a friend of yours"

"Not Bullivant!" said Mr Tempany, with a start

"Yes She writes that her husband is an old friend of yours, and that you sent her a beautiful bracelet How good of you Podmore! You never gave me a beautiful bracelet" added the widow, reproachfully

"I—in the way of business" muttered Mr Tempany, feeling faint

"Amy and he will be passing through town to-morrow, and will make a point of calling to show me the bracelet" continued Mrs Bramwell Jay innocently "She says it is extremely handsome, and she want to read me your kind letter Are you ill Podmore

"No no It is the heat of the fire," gasped Mr Tempany, wiping his forehead "I wanted you to come somewhere with me to-morrow Theodosia—for the whole day I mean I haven't been to the—the Crystal Palace for years, or to Greenwich Park Will you come to Greenwich park Theodosia" he added desperately

"What horridly vulgar places! How absurd you are, Podmore!" exclaimed the widow looking at him rather curiously "Besides I want to see Amy when she calls. I shall certainly stay in for her to-morrow

"I shouldn't if I were you," said Mr Tempany earnestly "Very inconsiderate of her I call it, to swoop down upon you like that

"I don't think so" returned Mrs. Bramwell Jay "I want particularly to see the bracelet you sent her Will you come and meet her Podmore?"

"No, no thank you Certainly not," replied the unhappy man, seizing his hat "I mean that I shall be busy all to-morrow—particularly busy Another time I shall be delighted

"I suppose you and Amy have never met?" remarked the widow with a suspicious glance

"Never No never I assure you," answered Mr Tempany and being anxious to avoid further questions, he beat a hasty retreat

His tale of agitation and nervous apprehension may be easily imagined, for it seemed inevitable that the deception he had practiced would be exposed The widow could not fail to recognize her own bracelet, and would, of course, call on him for an explanation The situation was embarrassing to say the least, and might lead to awkward consequences Mrs Bramwell Jay, in her natural disgust and indignation would in all probability break off the engagement on the spot, and the story would be known all over London Mr Tempany got no sleep that night, and became more and more uneasy every moment It suddenly occured to him, in the midst of his mental perturbation, that he committed an act of felony punishable by law. It was an awful reflection, and caused Mr Tempany to break into a cold perspiration. The disagreeable contingency—however remote—of finding him self in the dock, had the effect of spurring his imaginative and inventive powers, so that, inspired by sheer desperation, he at length concocted a story which he hoped might serve his purpose. The consequence was that when, in the course of the next day he received a peremptory note from the widow, requesting him to call upon her immediately, he was able to keep the appointment with an outward appearance of calm.

"Mr. Tempany, this is most extraordinary!" said, Mrs. Bramwell Jay, after a very cold greeting. "Amy has been here this morning, and I find that the bracelet you presented to her is mine! I gave it to you to take to the jewelers."

"Nonsense!" exclaimed Mr. Tempany, with a well feigned start of surprise. "It is impossible!"

"Impossible! Why, here it is!" said the widow, producing the ornament. "There can be no mistake about it. I will swear to it. Of course Amy returned it to me, and I have lost no time in asking you for an explanation."

"What an odd circumstance—quite ludicrous! I must speak to Bevis. He evidently gave me back your bracelet in mistake for the one I had bought," said Mr. Tempany, speaking quickly and nervously.

"Who is Bevis?" inquired Mrs. Bramwell Jay "Do you mean the jeweler in Sackville street"

"Yes I never opened the case after he handed it to me across the counter, but sent it direct to Mrs Bullivant," explained Mr. Tempany, gaining confidence. "I recollect it was the same day that I left your bracelet to be repaired It is clear how the mistake arose"

"Still, it seems very extraordinary!" repeated the widow, evidently only half convinced "The jeweler must be a very careless man, and deserves a good scolding Suppose we go at once and ask him what he means by it? The carriage is at the door, and I am dressed for my drive, as you see.

"Pray don't trouble, Theodosia I—I really think you had better stay at home on a cold day like this," cried Mr Tempany, with fearful eagerness "I will call on Bevis at once this instant—but there is no occasion for you to go"

"Oh, I should like to go and shall enjoy the man's confusion," returned the lady rather sharply Besides, I am curious to see the bracelet you have chosen for dear Amy"

Mr Tempany was so utterly taken aback by this sudden and unexpected whim of Mrs. Bramwell Jay's that he could not find another word to say He followed the lady meekly to her carriage, and took his seat beside her, feeling like a criminal being led to execution. This ill-timed visit to the jeweler's must, he felt, inevitably complete his discomfiture, for Mr Bevis would naturally deny all knowledge of the bracelet It really seemed as though the only course open to him was to confess everything on the spot, to avoid needless exposure and disgrace. But Mr Tempany could not bring himself to acknowledge his deceit unless he was absolutely obliged, and during the drive he resolved as a last chance to hurry into the shop alone, on pretence of inquiring if Mr Bevis were within, and take the opportunity to whisper a word of warning in his ear No doubt the jeweler was open to a bribe and would make no difficulty about screening him In his desperate state Mr Tempany took heart at this idea, and even contrived to converse with the widow with apparent equanimity

But alas! his little scheme was frustrated by the accidental circumstance of the coachman taking a wrong turning, so that when the carriage stopped, the side on which the widow sat was nearest to the pavement The footman too, was unfortunately a very smart youth, and descended from the box with such alacrity that the carriage door was open before Mr Tempany had recovered his surprise at having reached the jeweler's. The consequence was that the widow alighted first and stepped into the shop, while Mr Tempany, feeling that the fates were against him, and that he was pursued by a relentless Nemesis, followed after her in a state of despair

"Mr Bevis, how came you to make such an extraordinary mistake? You are Mr. Bevis, I presume?" said the widow, approaching the counter

"Yes, madam" said the jeweler quietly, "Will you be seated? What mistake?"

Mrs Bramwell Jay explained with fatal precision, while Mr Tempany stood by bursting with desperate eagerness to put in a word By sheer force of will and mesmeric influence he succeeded in catching Mr Bevis eye during the recital Now Mr Bevis, the jeweler, was a shrewd little man, and a glance at the agonized and bloodless face sufficed to put him on the alert He knew the unhappy gentleman by sight, and also by reputation, and, though their transactions had been extremely limited in extent, he had pretty well fathomed his character. He therefore guessed at once how the land lay, and what was required of him and though he made no sign, a ghost of a smile flickered for an instant about the corners of his mouth, when the widow had finished and awaited his reply

"I am extremely sorry madam," he answered, with calm deliberation

"It—it was very careless," Mr Tempany was emboldened to say, though his heart was beating fiercely

"Very!" said the widow emphatically, manifestly taken aback "I cannot imagine how you could have done such a thing."

"Mistakes will sometimes happen in the best regulated establishment" said Mr Bevis, with humility while Mr Tempany felt a strong desire to evince his gratitude by falling on his neck

"Where is the bracelet this gentleman purchased then?" inquired the widow, still in an incredulous tone

For an instant Mr Tempany's uneasiness revived, but Mr Bevis was quite equal to the emergency Without a moment's hesitation he turned round and produced from a drawer behind him, a case which he laid upon the counter

Mr Tempany was so overwhelmed with a feeling of relief, that he felt no curiosity as to the contents of the case His attention was attracted to it by a startled exclamation from Mrs Bramwell Jay

"Oh! Podmore! What a splendid bracelet! Why, it is a blaze of diamonds!" she cried clasping her hands

"Eh!" exclaimed Mr Tempany, hastily putting on his glasses with a startled air "What Good heavens That isn't the bracelet that I—chose, he added, seeing at a glance that it must be worth several hundred pounds

"Yes it is, sir" returned Mr Bevis, in a very quiet, decisive tone

"Oh, no! I—I think not, at least," gasped Mr Tempany, but observing the shrewd look on Mr Bevis face, which said as plainly as possible that the bracelet was the price of the service that he had rendered, Mr Tempany subsided into a frightened and uneasy silence

"Oh Podmore! This is really too good for Amy Much more than is necessary, I'm sure, said the widow, who had been gazing enraptured, at the ornament.

"Yes Theodosia, so I think!" acquiesced Mr Tempany, eagerly "It is too rich I am sure she would like something quite plain, better. A gold band or a simple bangle would be much more suitable I think I will change it

"No, Podmore I have an idea Amy was delighted with my bracelet, and she shall have it I will keep this one, instead of my own, as a present from you?" said the widow, in a tone of decision "It will be the first really handsome present you have given me, you know!"

"I'm sure you dont want it, Theodosia," said Mr Tempany, with a kind of a groan "It—it doesn't suit your complexion, I'm afraid"

"You think not? Look, Mr Bevis What do you say?" exclaimed the widow, clasping the bracelet on her shapely arm

"Excellent!" cried Mr. Bevis, in a tone of emphatic admiration, for which Mr. Tempany hated him on the spot. "Nothing could look handsomer"

"Very well Then that is settled," said Mrs Bramwell Jay, pleasantly I'm sure Amy will be glad to get my bracelet back again"

"You will have the stone replaced, of course, sir?" said Mr. Bevis, in a business-like tone, as he took up the discarded ornament

"Oh, certainly!" interposed the widow, before Mr. Tempany could utter a remark. "In fact, I think the setting should be renewed altogether. It is too old-fashioned."

"I will make a good job of it," replied Mr. Bevis, putting the case on one side "Good day, madam. Good day to you, sir"

Mr. Tempany went out of the shop without another word, being quite speechless with mingled emotion. His horror at the probable amount of the jeweler's bill was only equalled by the maddening feeling of helplessness which kept him from remonstrating. So far from experiencing satisfaction at his escape, he was now inclined to think it had cost him too dear, and his sentiments towards Mr. Bevis had changed to deep resentment. He excused himself from accompanying the widow for the remainder of her drive, feeling that he must be alone to brood over his crushing misfortunes. The lady seemed neither surprised nor hurt at this sudden desertion, and Mr. Tempany had an uncomfortable suspicion that she rather enjoyed his discomfiture. She was charmingly affable, however, and overwhelmed him with expressions of gratitude for his handsome present when he showed her into her carriage.

"By-the-by, Podmore, dear" she exclaimed, putting her herd out of the window as she drove off, "what could have induced you to say in your letter to Amy that this lovely bracelet was an heirloom in your family?"

This significant speech rankled a good deal in Mr. Tempany's mind, when he had sufficiently recovered from his state of horrified bewilderment to think it over. It really sounded as if the widow suspected she had been imposed upon, though she had not scrupled to turn the circumstance to account. It may have been owing to a guilty conscience, but Mr. Tempany certainly fancied that from that day forward the widow began to manifest decided coldness towards him. So apparent did this become to him, that if he had had any self-respect he would have terminated the engagement. However, as Mr Tempany regarded his marriage, as we know, from a very material point of view, he was not inclined to be easily affronted.

At the last moment, however, an unexpected obstacle occurred. The widow's solicitor intervened with some very nasty suggestions about a marriage settlement. This did not suit Mr. Tempany's views at all, and being unable to come to terms with the lawyer, he appealed somewhat indignantly to the lady herself. Mrs Bramwell Jay refused to interfere, saying that she was entirely in the hands of her legal adviser, and the upshot was that, finding the widow's fortune was so strictly tied up that he might be reduced to the unpleasant necessity of supporting his household with his own money, Mr. Tempany resolved to remain a bachelor until a more favorable opportunity offered.

Of course this was a dreadful blow to him It aged him considerably, for when he came to add up what his engagement had cost him, one way and another, in actual pounds, shillings and pence, he was fairly horrified at the amount. Mr. Bevis' account brought tears to his eyes, and reduced him to a state of incipient imbecility for days He had to pay for it, however, nor did he get a farthing discount But it was at least a faint consolation to think that he would recover something out of the fire. The bracelet would fetch a good round sum even at second hand, and this reflection buoyed him up a little, so long as he was permitted to indulge in it. But alas! Even this small solace was denied him for in acknowledging a small parcel containing the presents she had made him, the widow wrote as follows

Dear Mr, Tempany —Thanks for your sad sad letter and inclosures I do not like to think of what might have been, but for those dreadful lawyers I return all the dear gifts you gave me, except one, which I am sure you will allow me to keep and wear as a souvenir. The bracelet—your last gift—I cannot bring myself to part with, and I promise to keep it always—always! Your friend and well wisher,

THEODOSIA BRAMWELL JAY

FROM THE OLD WORLD.

From the great London (Eng) Times

Among the many specifics introduced to the public for the cure of dyspepsia indigestion, derangements of various kinds and as a general family medicine, none have met with such genuine appreciation as Hop Bitters Introduced to this country but a comparatively short time since to meet the great demand for a pure, safe and perfect family medicine, they have rapidly increased in favor, until they are, without question, the most popular and valuable medicine known Its world wide renown is not due to the advertising it has received it is famous by reason of its inherent virtue It does all that is claimed for it. It discharges its curative powers without any of the evil effects of other bitters or medicine, being perfectly safe and harmless for the most frail woman, smallest child, and weakest invalid to use Few are the homes indeed where the great discovery has not already been hailed as a deliverer and welcomed as a friend It does what others affect to do Composed of simple materials, it is a marvel of delicate and successful combination. Nothing is wanting Every ingredient goes straight to the mark at which it is aimed and never fails Pleasant to the palate, agreeable to the stomach and thoroughly effective as a cure, it has won for itself the confidence of all —Times London, Eng.

To the Hop Bitters Co

Gentlemen—Having suffered for many years from biliousness, accompanied with sickness and dreadful headache (being greatly fatigued with overwork and long hours at business), I lost all energy, strength and appetite I was advised by a friend in whom I had seen such beneficial effects to try Hop Bitters, and a few bottles have quite altered and restored me to better health than ever I have also recommended it to other friends, and am pleased to add with the like result. Every claim you make for it I can fully endorse, and recommend it as an incomparable tonic.

Yours faithfully, S W PITT

Hop Bitters Co

Dear sirs—I have taken your most precious essence, Hop Bitters—and I can already, after so short a time assure you that I feel much better than I have felt for months

I have had, during the course of four years, three times an inflammation of the kidneys. The last, in January, 1880, was the worst, and I took a lot of medicine to cure the same, in consequence of which my stomach got terribly weakened I suffered from enormous pains, had to bear great torments when taking nourishment, had sleepless nights, but none of the medicine was of the least use to me Now, in consequence of taking Hop Bitters, these pains and inconveniences have entirely left me I have a good night's rest, and am sufficiently strengthened for work, while I always had to lay down during the day, and this almost every hour, I shall think it my duty to recommend the Bitters to all who suffer, for I am sure I cannot thank the Lord enough that I came across your preparation, and I hope He will maintain you a long time to come for the welfare of suffering mankind. Yours very truly

PAULINE HAUSSLER, Gebr Rosler

From Portugal and Spain.

Gentlemen—Though not in the habit of praising patent medicines, which for the most part are not only useless but injurious, I have constantly used Hop Bitters for the past four years in cases of indigestion, debility, feebleness or constitution and in all diseases caused by poor or bad ventilation, want of air and exercise, overwork and want of appetite, with the most perfect success I am the first who introduced your Hop Bitters in Portugal and Spain, where they are now used very extensively Yours very truly, Terrible Suffering.

Kidney and Bladder Complaints of Many Years Duration—His Word as Good as Gold—Case of City Assessor Francis Gomard, 89 Sumner St., Lowell, Mass.

"His word is as good as a bank note at any bank in Lowell, and I know it," was the opinion of a well known citizen in speaking of City Assessor Francis Gomard Your reporter found Mr. Gomard at his pleasant home, which, with many others, adorns Sumner street and fronts the charming park of South Common Mr Gomard said, "I had been, as many of my friends in Lowell know, a great sufferer from kidney and urinary troubles for a long time My physician said it was the result of diseased kidneys and enlargement of the prostate gland I had suffered terribly, and although my doctor's treatment had been the best which this city afforded, I got no better I said finally, 'Doctor, it's no use You have done all that is in your power to do, I know that, but I must get help from some other source or die.' Finally I was induced to try Dr Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY, a medicine which had been recommended very highly for kidney diseases I received help at once It has acted like a charm with me Why so? Dr Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY is an honest preparation, and I know it. I didn't think anything would help me but this has given me better health than any medicine ever prescribed for me I have recommended it to ever so many of my friends in the city of Lowell, and with the same result. They think there is nothing like Dr. Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY"

What Mr. Gomard says can be depended upon, as any one acquainted with the gentleman knows
